

New England Writers' Centre

ONLINE WORKSHOP

How to write

Quick Crime

(and get away with it)

Master crime, mystery
and suspense in short story writing

In this return-by-demand workshop, award-winning author JP Pomare will show us how to commit the perfect crime in under 2500 words.

Learn the tricks of the trade from an expert in crime writing. Make sure to have a cup of tea, coffee or martini (shaken, not stirred), and some not-so-innocent ideas and settle in!

Bonus alert! Every participant gets one free entry into the 2022 Thunderbolt Prize for Crime Writing (just write: "short story workshop" on your entry form).

Who is JP Pomare?

J.P. (Joshua) Pomare is an award-winning writer who has had work published in journals including Meanjin, Kill Your Darlings, Takahe and Mascara Literary Review. He has hosted the On Writing podcast since 2015 featuring bestselling authors from around the globe. His first psychological thriller, Call Me Evie, was a bestseller, published in the US and UK and in translation, and winning the Ngaio Marsh Award for Best First Novel.

WARNING!

JP has a taste for fast paced story telling - stories that surprise him and tie a cold knot in the pit of his stomach. His short story workshop is not for the faint of heart!
